Story or History quilts - share the story with us....

This category was created in memory of iconic Gympie Rotarian and former Gympie ambulance superindendent Ron Lawrence - remembered with so much affection, still bringing a smile when recalling his amazing talent for spinning a yarn, telling a tale.

If you have a quilt that makes you smile, invokes a memory, has a special place in your family or your heart, enter it and let us share it's unique tale.

Intriguing, humourous, generations old and/or heartfelt - not necessarily technically proficient - these quilts are the very essence of the quilting traditions. Signs of wear are signs of love! Below are some previous entries:

Chookie Quilt - Hot Stuff in The Hen House

by Brenda McFeeters (measuring 188 x 200cm)

I made this quilt years ago for my late husband and it tells some of the story of his life. Before we came to Noosa to live, we raised chooks and travelled to poultry shows including South Australia, Victoria and New South Wales. He took out many prizes and ribbons with the different breeds and types of birds. Mostly these ribbons are from Broken Hill but there were too many to put on the quilt. There are the steps of his life that were important to us from being born and the main mile stones that makes it special. There are 28 different patterns of chookie material and some chilli designs as he made chilli sauce for friends and loved to eat chilli.

The Labyrinth of St Bertin

by Deirdre Casparian (measuring 278 x 278cm)

Over 30 years ago, Dierdre came across the design of a medieval labyrinth, once existing on the floor of a 14th century Benedictine abbey. She began collecting fabric scraps from garments she had produced for family and friends with the labyrinth in mind.

After 12 months of hand-stitching, her Labyrinth quilt was completed, each 5cm square of recycled fabric bringing back a memory, each with it's own story to tell - old projects, name plates, the denim of her husband's much-loved reluctantly-abandoned old Levis.

Antique American Quilt

(measuring 200cm x 210cm)

Exhibited Gympie Rotary Quilt & Craft Spectacular 2018

This quilt was made in America probably around 1846. It is typical of the quilts made prior to the Civil War in colour, design and fabric and is referred to as a 'Summer Quilt' or 'Coverlet', as it does have batting. The method used was foundation block piecing onto a muslin backing fabric. It does not have any quilting. A pineapple block construction with most joining blocks covered with an appliqued square. This pineapple quilt block, believed to have emerged in the mid 1800's during Lincoln's presidential campaign, is a symbol of opulence and elegance. Historically, the red centre block is a symbol for the heart or the warmth of the home hearth. The yellow centre represents a welcoming light in the window. During its 165 year old history, this quilt has been repaired with varying degrees of expertise. Sections of one fabric have been systematically removed from all the units. An explanation for this could be that this quilt was sewn by one of the plantation 'Sewing Slaves' who at times hid African designs and religious symbols in the master's quilt.
